ABR Secures Online Certification Exams

Opportunity

The ABR oversees the certification and ongoing professional development of physicians and medical physicists who are undergoing or have completed diagnostic radiology, interventional radiology, radiation oncology, or medical physics training. In May 2021, responding to pandemic-related logistical demands and restrictions, the ABR launched an online exam platform for its Initial Certification exams, which made it necessary for the Board to remotely verify board candidates' identities.

Solution

The ABR deployed authID's facial biometric authentication solution, Verified™ , to help the ABR certify candidates. With the ease of a "selfie" to confirm identity – through either a webcam or mobile device –Verified provides the ABR with stronger identity authentication to maintain the integrity of remote exams. Now, instead of a disruptive verification process, candidates will perform an identity verification ahead of the exam, and then simply snap their selfie to confirm identity at exam time.

> " I am certainly going to focus on security and ease of use when I present to the other boards on authID. I will also mention that authID is a great partner. Our whole team has been extremely impressed with how helpful and knowledgeable authID has been. "
